Commentary:

The 4:th movement is written for alto flute and 10-string guitar.

Most flautists possess an alto flute, so I dont think that will cause any trouble.

However, most guitarists doesn't possess a 10-string guitar.

So, what to do then if you really want to play this piece?

Well, why not try to play it anyway and adapt the high and low notes to what is possible to carry out!

After all I think that the most essential in that movement is not the notes but the silence!
